SUMMIT

on Youth

Resource Guide

About this Guide

Since 2013, we have collaborated with local non-profits and government to bring the Summit on Youth to this community. We believe that bringing together those who work directly with teens from at-risk environments allows us to better meet the needs of this vulnerable group and their families. Spending a day to network and learn about what is going on with teens gives all participants the tools they need. One of the needs that was identified early on in this process was a lack of current information on available resources.

This guide is intended to aid the community in connecting teens and their families to services and programs that can help.

An online version of this guide can be found at www.volunteermckinney.org
